After a long time of not writing, I am back. I don't know what kind of vigilants I shall be, but I have set forth for yourself & Big Ed that they not benefit anyone. You have to stop making assumptions about people. If you really do care about your community, you show it with support, not belly laughs. I have been fighting off half of my entire life, but I am also fighting. I used to work with immigrants and understand that people need most bullies are the result of past trauma. So if this is your story, please know that you are not alone, but this is not the way to heal. I am not making any assumptions, mind you, but I always give the benefit of the doubt. I have to protect my ear and my family, but, if you can find the sense to quit the nonsense, this does not need to go any further.

Attachment II - Reasons I Disagree

I was contacted by [REDACTED] via Facebook on October 18th regarding a screenshot she had been given from a private Facebook conversation between myself and [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] is a community member with whom I have had a conversation on a number of topics for the past four years. This was my first and only interaction with [REDACTED]. I do not know [REDACTED] and to my knowledge I have never met [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] was under the belief that I was "planning to post" information related to an arrest I had discussed in a private message with [REDACTED]. The arrest itself is a matter of public record and appears in Internet searches of his name. In her message to me on October 18th, [REDACTED] stated that if I posted this information she would pursue litigation. While I did share with [REDACTED] a screenshot of an arrest, it did not name [REDACTED] anywhere and I was unaware she was involved in any way until her message to me. I was taken aback by [REDACTED] message as I never implied that I would be posting anything publically. My intention was always for my private conversation with [REDACTED] to remain private. The screenshots of my conversation with [REDACTED] also confirmed that I never made any mention of posting this information. I Informed [REDACTED] that I never said I would be posting anything. Despite my assurance, [REDACTED] continued to demand I stop sending her information to people and that I contact her lawyer or she would pursue legal action. [REDACTED] was the only person I had sent this information to and I had no intention of sending it to anyone else therefore I saw no reason to have any further interactions with [REDACTED] nor did I feel as though I had any reason to speak to her lawyer and I did not reply to her message. She then messaged me again with my own address and her husband called my personal cell phone. Given the drastic escalation by [REDACTED] over what appeared to be a misunderstanding on her part, I perceived these actions as threatening and I contacted the San Bernardino Sheriff's department for documentation purposes. [REDACTED] I also asked [REDACTED] to please stop contacting me and when she continued to message me I blocked her on Facebook.

While [REDACTED] is claiming that my actions were threatening to her in some way, my only action was a single private conversation with [REDACTED] about a third party that was over and done with before [REDACTED] ever messaged me. I do not know why she is attempting to take this protected order out on me. I have never met [REDACTED]. I do not wish to have any contact with [REDACTED]. I have never initiated contact with [REDACTED]. Previous to her contacting me, I didn't even know that she was the victim in the aforementioned case I was discussing with [REDACTED]. I also never paid for this information as she claims - nor did I seek this information out. This was an unaltered screenshot from a public website that pops up on a simple websearch of the defendant's name. Nothing I did forced [REDACTED] to disclose her medical conditions as I was unaware of her being the victim in the screenshot of the court record, and I did not seek out information about her medical conditions.

I interpreted her messages to me as an informal cease and desist. While sharing factual information which appears in the public record is not prohibited by California law, I understood that she was upset - and no further action was taken, except by her. I asked her to please stop contacting me and told her it was unwelcome harassment - and she is the one who persisted. I have done everything in my power to limit contact with [REDACTED].

Additionally, I was never served paperwork, I had to seek out information about the TRO request myself.

< [REDACTED] [REDACTED]

Good evening. I am hearing that you are planning to post my family's private business online. This is out of line and an absolute attack on myself, which will cost you dearly in legal action. The [REDACTED] was dismissed. I am autistic and made a distress call during an episode involving my neurological challenges. It was misinterpreted by police (surprising, right?) and the charges were dropped by the DA. If you post this, I will not only pursue you with litigation, but I will also partner with the Autism Society of the Inland Empire and my organization
